Webster City – A meeting to kick off an innovative technology program focused on growing the local economy and improving quality of life in Hamilton County is slated for May 17.

Local leaders from Hamilton County have elected to participate in an innovative program that seeks increased access, adoption, and use of broadband. Staff from Connect Iowa, the statewide nonprofit promoting solutions for broadband expansion, are guiding area leaders through the steps of the new Connected community certification program, offering a comprehensive and localized way for communities to bridge the digital divide.

A kick off meeting for the effort is set for 1 p.m., Thursday, May 17, at the Hamilton County Conservation Building located at 2490 Briggs Woods Trail in Webster City to begin building a plan to ensure that every home, school, organization, and business in the Hamilton County area has access to broadband.

Community members interested in the project are welcome to join. Local residents who represent the following sectors are also encouraged to attend:

- Business and industry
- Healthcare
- Libraries
- K-12 education
- Higher education
- Community-based organizations
- Government
- Agriculture
- Tourism, recreation and parks
- Tribal representatives

The local team will begin by assessing their current state of technology, work with Connect Iowa to determine what improvements are needed, and then devise a plan for achieving their local goals.

The Connected program is part of the Connect Iowa initiative. Connect Iowa is a non-profit working to accelerate the availability and use of technology throughout the state towards creating a better business environment, more effective community and economic development, improved healthcare, more efficient government, enhanced education, and improved quality of life.
